

Has your business been effected
by staff unable to get into the office?

How many important calls did you lose?

Quite simply, Hosted IP telephony works anywhere where there's an internet connection, so you really don't need to lose sleep or business over a bit of snow!!

Just plug your telephone into your home connection and it will ring when your office or extension number is called, just as it does at work. In fact your entire office staff can work from home and still have the same call functionality as they would in the office.

You can also divert all your calls to your home telephone or mobile (or any other telephone anywhere) just by logging into your account and setting the number to be called.

Make sure you have your business continuity plan in place today!

Hosted IP telephony offers many advantages over traditional phone systems, as well as providing a business continuity and disaster recovery solution.

Prices start from just £19.99 per month per user and you can use it on your existing phone numbers.

The snow may be beginning to thaw, but whether its next month, next winter, or some other event that impacts on work access – being prepared is a small investment with a potentially invaluable return.
